Coverage of Baby P tragedy 'made children less safe'

Tragic toddler: Baby P

A NEW book on the Baby P saga argues that the way in which the media reported the story created a "climate of fear" in the social work profession and has made vulnerable children less safe.

Baby P, whose full name was Peter Connelly, was a 17-month old boy who was on Haringey Council's child protection register and died in Tottenham in 2007 after months of horrific abuse.

His mother Tracey Connelly, her boyfriend Steven Barker and his brother Jason Owen were convicted in 2008 of causing or allowing his death.

There were calls in the media for the sacking of the council's director of children's services Sharon Shoesmith, who was later dismissed, as well as six social workers.

In The Story Of Baby P: Setting The Record Straight, Dr Ray Jones, professor of social work at Kingston University and a former director of social services, argues the media campaign was "toxic".

Speaking at the Big Green Bookshop, in Brampton Park Road, Wood Green, last Thursday, Dr Jones told an audience that the media, in particular The Sun, newspaper, decided to "blow up" the story and turn it into a "personalised story" by pinning Peter's death on social workers.

"In the aftermath we saw a tremendous increase in the number of care protection proceedings to remove children from their homes, many of whom should not have been removed," he said.

This campaign, he argued, was motivated by a long-standing political agenda against the council. It ignored the shortcomings of the Metropolitan Police as well as Great Ormond Street Hospital NHS Trust, where Peter had been assessed just days before his death.

Asked whether the saga had made children across Britain safer, Dr Jones added: "I think not. People are cutting corners and closing work down more quickly."

"We are having difficulty in recruiting people on the front line and we are seeing tremendous churn in leadership. Children are less safe and secure and I think that the events of 2008 are partly responsible for that."

For sale: The house in Glenwood Road

An ideal home for narrow-minded

A HOUSE that is just 6ft 11 inches wide can be yours for £235,000.

The terrace house in Glenwood Road, Haringey, boasts two bedrooms and will be auctioned to the highest bidder on October 1 at a guide price of £235,000.

According to the agent for the property, James McHugh, from McHugh & Co, the property is ideal for a "rental investor or an owner-occupier".

He said: "It's narrow, but it's unique. There are not many of them in the capital."

The winning bidder will get a reception area, a kitchen and a bathroom on the ground floor. There is also a roof terrace.

The petite property was occupied for the last nine years before the owner decided to sell it.

MP: I WANT TO BE LONDON'S MAYOR

Lammy joins the race to be Labour candidate

By Chloe Nichols

news.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

TOTTENHAM MP David Lammy has announced he wants to become Labour's candidate for London mayor.

The 42-year-old Tottenham MP served as a minister in the last Labour government for nine years and was made a Privy Councillor in 2008.

Mr Lammy said: "I'm lucky enough to have seen London from all angles – from growing up next to the Broadwater Farm estate in Tottenham, studying at the School of Oriental and African Studies, becoming a barrister and now being the MP for my home constituency."

Mr Lammy explained that the housing crisis was one issue he would tackle if he is successful in his ambitions.

He said: "I've benefited from London at its best, which is a city of great opportunities where everyone, whoever you are, can get on, build a life and set down roots."

"We are increasingly losing that sense of opportunity as it is replaced by a world of low pay, soaring rents and exorbitant house prices. Addressing those issues and once again making London a city of opportunity for all who live here is why I want to be mayor."

One of Mr Lammy's suggestions is to put affordable housing genuinely within the grasp of people on ordinary incomes by linking the definition of affordable to average earnings in each borough and capping the affordability threshold at 60 per cent.

"We are in this situation because of a wilful refusal of successive governments to accept the scale of London's housing crisis," he said.

"We now need bold and serious decisions to be made in order to get London building as soon as possible."

Other candidates tipped to run are the former Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport Tessa Jowell, Shadow Justice Secretary and former government minister Sadiq Khan and former Shadow Minister for Public Health Diane Abbott.

Ambition: David Lammy

Mr Lammy said that the housing crisis had helped influence his decision to run for mayor.

He said: "It's big issues like this that will define the future of London and working on this has led me to declare my intention to run for Mayor of London."

Residents urged to apply for £700,000 of priority funding

COMMUNITY groups have been urged to get their applications in to claim a piece of Enfield Council's £700,000 Residents' Priority Fund.

The fund, which finances community projects designed by voluntary and community groups, has faced substantial cuts since its launch in 2011 when the council allocated more than £2million to pay for schemes including sports coaching, street parties and music training.

In July, the Advertiser reported that the fund had been cut to just £500,000. While this amount has since been increased to £700,000, the pot is still nearly two thirds what it once was and the council has introduced more stringent criteria for applications.

Under new rules, no single application may exceed £5,000, organisations may only submit one application per ward per year and proposals must not duplicate existing council or community schemes. Proposals that provide volunteering or training opportunities are encouraged.

Yasemin Brett, cabinet member for community organisations, said: "The Enfield Residents' Priority

Fund remains a hugely popular initiative. Since 2011, nearly 600 projects worth £5.6m have been developed and delivered by residents and groups working with their ward councillors.

"We are keen that the ERPF continues from strength to strength, so once again we are putting a call out to any local people who would like to make a bid to the fund to find out more and apply."

MP Love supports bid to alter 'bedroom tax'

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

EDMONTON MP Andy Love has welcomed the outcome of a Commons vote which could see major changes to the government's controversial bedroom tax.

On Friday, MPs backed the Affordable Homes Bill, tabled by Liberal Democrat Andrew George, at a second reading by 306 votes to 231 after Labour members, including Mr Love, joined most Lib Dems in voting in favour of the bill.

Labour has repeatedly vowed to scrap the controversial policy, officially known as the spare room subsidy.

Mr George's private member's bill seeks to shield disabled residents from the policy, which sees the housing benefit of households renting from Enfield

Council or a housing association cut by 14 per cent if they have a "spare" bedroom, rising to 25 per cent for those with two or more additional bedrooms.

In April 1,345 households in Enfield were affected, with one in seven of those council tenants running into rent arrears as a result.

Speaking after the vote, Mr Love said the result was a "step in the right direction", but added: "It would have been better if the Lib Dems had not supported the cruel and unfair tax at all.

"It has always been apparent that some of the most vulnerable in society are being hit by the bedroom tax.

"Nationally, two thirds of those affected have disabilities and 60,000 are carers.

"It's only right that, if the government won't go as far as abolishing the tax, they at least exempt those who face no alternatives."

Mr George's bill also seeks to exempt tenants who have not received a "reasonable offer of alternative social rented accommodation".

In April, only 21 households had been able to downsize through Enfield Council's mutual exchange scheme.

Enfield Southgate MP David Burrowes and his Enfield North colleague Nick de Bois voted against the bill.

Mr Burrowes added: "The policy is about ensuring the welfare bill comes under control and that there is some equity with the private sector.

"The reality is that there is a welfare bill and it needs to be paid for. It is a case of taking difficult decisions to bring down the deficit and to ensure the economy is in a good state."

Thousands behind campaign to stop pub becoming steak house

Customers organise protest after new owners announce intentions

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

RESIDENTS in Cockfosters have launched a campaign to stop their favourite pub being turned into a steak house.

It follows an announcement by the new owners of The Cock and Dragon, in Chalk Lane, that they no longer intend to operate the premises as a pub and are planning to open a restaurant there early next year.

The news has been met with anger by customers, who say losing the pub, which specialises in British cask ales and serves Thai food, will be a blow to the community.

Caleb Storkey, 36, of Cadogan Gardens, Grange Park, drank his first pint at The Cock and Dragon when he was a teenager.

He told the Advertiser: "The campaign has had a great response so far, which reflects how important the pub is to so many in the community."

"I see still people there who I know from primary school. I even had my engagement party there – there's a lot of history. This plan shows the owners have a complete lack of connection to the area."

Since being launched on Tuesday last week, a page entitled Save The Cock And Dragon on Facebook has attracted almost 2,800 supporters.

Mitchells & Butlers Plc, which runs about 1,600 pubs, bars and restaurants throughout the country, bought The Cock and Dragon in June when it acquired a majority stake in the Orchid Group Estate, which previously owned the pub, in a £266million deal.

A spokeswoman said: "We plan to invest in The Cock and Dragon and open a Miller & Carter restaurant in early 2015."

"The plans include both a restaurant and a bar area, which offers a welcoming space for guests to enjoy our range of draught lagers, craft beers, spirits and wine."

"The pub team have been briefed and offered both training and job opportunities."

"This is a great opportunity for us to extend our steak house offer as well as make a significant investment in the local area."

However, Mr Storkey feels the area does not need another dining establishment and is short of places to drink.

He added: "The ales are great and the food is delicious. We don't want or need a steak house. We have plenty of good restaurants in the area, but hardly any good pubs."

"We are going to step up the campaign and will be producing some materials soon."

Fighting back: Caleb Storkey, a patron of The Cock and Dragon, stands outside the pub which could become a steak house

Solar panels plan dropped...for now

On hold: The application to put solar panels on green belt land divided opinion

ENVIRONMENTAL campaigners have been left fuming after plans to power thousands of homes with solar energy were put on hold.

A proposal to build solar panels on farmland bordering the M25 was scrapped by developers after Enfield Council officers advised councillors to reject the application.

The plans were scheduled to be discussed at a planning committee meeting last week – but Ashrise Solar Ltd withdrew its application at the 11th hour after a report revealed that insufficient research had been carried out into the effect the 25-hectare development would have on wildlife.

However, the agent acting for the company revealed this is not the end of the line for plans to produce enough energy to power 4,000 homes in the borough and a new application would be submitted "in the next two to three months".

The plans to erect hundreds of solar panels on the site in Sloemans Farm, off Whitewebbs Road, had been opposed by conservation group The Enfield Society.

Welcoming the news that the plans had been axed for the time being, society chairman Dave Cockle told the Advertiser that it is vital to protect the green belt.

Despite the setback, campaigners remain committed to championing green energy.

"I think people need to take into account the reduction in carbon emissions," said Green Party activist Douglas Coker. "These solar panels could cut CO2 emissions by more than 6,000 tonnes per year. Making energy from renewables has become a necessity."

Lorry driver held after fatal accident

A MAN has been arrested on suspicion of dangerous driving after a passenger in a lorry died following a collision on the North Circular Road.

Police were called to reports of an overturned lorry on the A406 at about 8.30 yesterday morning, near the Ikea Edmonton superstore at the junction of Hall Lane with the North Circular.

The 54-year-old passenger was treated by the London Ambulance Service at the scene before being pronounced dead at 9.26am.

No other vehicles were involved.

The 49-year-old lorry driver was arrested and remained in police custody at the time of going to press.

Police officers from the Serious Collision Investigation Unit, based at Chadwell Heath Traffic Garage, are investigating the incident and are appealing for witnesses to call 020 8597 4874.

Plea for witnesses to teen's stabbing | Hunt for conman who robbed couple

POLICE are appealing for witnesses after a man was stabbed in the back in broad daylight on Thursday last week.

A 19-year-old was with friends when he was approached by a man at Enfield Chase railway station, in Windmill Hill, Enfield, at about 2pm – and an altercation ensued during which the teenager was stabbed in the back.

Officers from the London Ambulance Service were called to the scene, but when they arrived they discovered that the victim had left without making any allegation to police.

He went to an east London hospital later that day and received treatment for his injury.

Police have launched an investigation. They are not treating the incident as gang-related.

Anyone with information about the stabbing is asked to call Enfield CID on 101 or, to remain anonymous, contact Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111, quoting reference CRIS 5219383/14.

A HUNT has been launched for a con artist who pretended to be a police officer before he ransacked the home of an elderly couple in Cockfosters last week.

A smartly-dressed man called at an address in Sussex Way at about 7.30pm on Monday, asking to talk to them about crime prevention.

After he was let in, the conman, who is described as white, 6ft and aged 25 to 30 and was wearing a dark suit, said he needed to conduct a search of the home – during which he stole the couple's jewellery and cash.

Detective Constable Ryan Clark, of Enfield Police, said: "I am keen to identify this man and urge anyone with information to contact me without delay."

Anyone with information should contact DC Clark by calling 101 or Crimestoppers, anonymously, on 0800 555 111, quoting reference number 5219143/14.

Murder charge after man, 51, is found dead in street

A MAN who died following an incident in a Brimsdown street last week has been named.

Phillip Steels, 51, was found with head injuries in Green Street, near the junction with Mayfield Road, just after 2am on Thursday after police officers and paramedics from the London Ambulance Service had been called to the scene.

A post-mortem at Poplar Mortuary on Friday revealed that the cause of death was blunt trauma to the head.

Malachi Lindo, 26, of Bowles Green, Turkey Street, has been charged with the murder of Mr Steels, who it is believed lived in the area.

He was remanded in custody at the Old Bailey yesterday and is due to appear there again on November 25.

Four flee from flat fire

FOUR people escaped from a fire at a flat in Upper Edmonton on Monday night.

Firefighters from Edmonton and Tottenham were called to the blaze at a block of flats in Brettenham Road just before 10pm and found three adults and a child who had escaped from the burning property.

The fire was brought under control after 45 minutes. The child and three adults were treated at the scene by the London Ambulance Service for smoke inhalation.

Half of the ground-floor flat was destroyed by the fire, the cause of which is being investigated.

Calling for action: Alan Sitkin at the bridge

Reopen steps or 'children could risk road death'

Call for repairs to be carried out

By Ivana Scatola

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

PARENTS say closed steps at a footbridge crossing Wilmer Way and Bowes Road with schools either side of it poses a threat to hundreds of pupils who have just started the new academic year.

The bridge is used by pupils and parents of Broomfield secondary and Bowes primary, as well as many commuters from Arnos Grove Tube station nearby. Steps to the bridge have been blocked off since April.

With the return of pupils to school this week, the issue of road safety is of great concern to parents once again.

Access to the footbridge can still be made via long wheelchair and cycling ramps on a less steep incline further down the road from the steps. However, residents say it takes much longer to walk along these ramps than the steps and pupils will not be bothered to use these ramps to cross safely, especially if they are late for school.

Richard McKeever, who runs community forum Bowes and Bounds Connected, said: "The reality is kids won't use these ramps and will run across the busy motorway instead."

Residents say that the reason for the closure of the footbridge appears to be unstable pins supporting the stairs, which have come apart from the structure.

However, to fix this seemingly small structural issue is more complicated than it seems.

Alan Sitkin, a councillor for Bowes ward, said: "The issue here is that the road and bridge do not actually belong to the council but to Transport for London.

"TfL is not accountable to the council, but to the London Assembly. Unfortunately, though, TfL's objectives do not match our own."

"We have been putting pressure on TfL for quite a while now to change this and have even got London Assembly representative Joanne McCartney involved," added Mr Sitkin.

The bridge was built as part of the A406 redevelopment about 18 months ago, one of the main supporting arguments for which was a reduction in road-related deaths.

The Advertiser asked TfL for a response to Mr Sitkin's comments, but one was not received by the time we went to press.

Under construction: The new temple building in Church Lane, Edmonton

By Ivana Scatola

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

RESIDENTS have complained about noise caused by building work at a Hindu temple.

The Nagapooshani Ambaal Tamil Temple, in Church Lane, Edmonton, applied for permission in 2012 to demolish the existing building and put up a new place of worship and community hall. The plans were approved by Enfield Council.

Work on the new structure started at the beginning of the month – but the combined noise of building and prayer sessions involving music is a major concern to residents, who say that their peace is being disturbed.

Rachelle Romeo, 30, of Latymer Road, is a resident whose house backs on to the temple. “Due to the residential nature of the area, there is not much space around the temple, so noise, not to mention the dust from the building work, travels very easily,” she said.

She also blames visitors to the temple for causing a huge problem with parking spaces on narrow roads in the area.

However, project managers for the temple’s reconstruction explained that the ongoing building work would aid neighbours’ noise complaints in the long run.

“We are reconstructing the temple to make it soundproof,” explained Siva Sivanathan, the project’s managing director. “We will be using better materials that will control the acoustics and control music levels.

“We take every effort to minimise disturbance to residents and ensure to inform them of the project’s plans by sending them regular leaflets and letters explaining the building work.”

He added that parking issues in the area were not entirely due to visitors to the temple.

“The council looked into the registration plates of the cars parked in the road and discovered most of the cars belong to those accessing Edmonton Green station nearby,” he said.

The temple tries to avoid road congestion by providing extra measures for big events, directing visitors to Latymer All Saints Primary School’s car park, in Hydethorpe Avenue.

Plans for the temple include importing a religious shrine from India, which is made from rhinestone.

“This is an important project in the area and community,” said Mr Sivanathan. “There is no other Hindu Tamil temple in the borough and I am certain that the new temple will add aesthetic value to Enfield and be an impressive landmark.”

OPINIONColumnist*Monty Meth*Life president – Enfield Over-50s Forum

I DOUBT if I will live long enough to see the worldwide Older People's Day on Wednesday, October 1, celebrated as widely as Mother's Day or Father's Day.

But we are having a go this year by offering 200 people the chance to make new friends, have a free hot lunch and pick up some tips on keeping healthy and warm this winter.

You may well be asking why, when we have had one of the best summers for many a year, is he banging on about a cold, cold winter ahead? The answer is simple.

I want to shake us out of the complacency that allowed 31,000 older people to die in the winter of 2012-13 over and above the normal number of deaths in the winter as a direct result of the cold weather. Statisticians call this "excess winter deaths".

Who knows or cares that in the 2011-12 winter Enfield recorded 179 excess winter deaths, the 10th highest figure out of 326 councils in England?

Last winter there were 147 excess winter deaths in Enfield.

Imagine the nationwide uproar there would be if there were 147 premature deaths among Enfield's children in a year.

Are we now saying that, as a caring country, when 147 of our fellow citizens die it does not matter because they are old?

That's why we're having a "beat the winter cold, beat the winter flu" day at the Art Zone, in Market Square, Edmonton Green.

Forums a chance to give your views

FURTHER to T. Clifford's letter "Council under less scrutiny" (Advertiser, August 20), I would like to thank him for raising this issue.

He did show a genuine interest in local affairs raising a number of subjects which were of interest to all.

His contribution is valued and indeed we look forward to seeing him at the next area ward forum for Edmonton Green, Haselbury and Upper Edmonton on September 18 at 7.30pm at Community House, Edmonton Green. We will have an update on the issues Mr Clifford and others have raised at previous area ward forums.

In addition, Edmonton councillors are holding advice surgeries at Edmonton Green Library from 10.30am to noon, plus other surgeries and others by arrangement with constituents.

In Haselbury ward, for example, there is an additional surgery every first Friday of the month from 7pm until 8pm at Churchfield School, Latymer Road, Edmonton.

George Savva

Haselbury ward councillor

THE first of the Chase ward forums will be held on September 17 at the Four Hills Community Hall, Cedar Road (off Brigadier Hill), Enfield, at 7pm for a 7.30pm start. If you are a Chase Ward resident, then please feel free to attend.

I was so privileged to meet NHS marchers

IT'S not every day you get to meet campaigners who have marched 300 miles (from Jarrow to London) to highlight the importance of our NHS.

On Friday evening, I had the great privilege to meet the group when they arrived in Edmonton having passed North Middlesex Hospital.

On Saturday, the final stretch, from Edmonton to Trafalgar Square, marked the end of their three-week journey. There, they were met by many, many thousands of campaigners.

The group was calling for an end to the relentless hospital cuts and closures throughout the country.

The group also called for the 2012 Health and Social Care Act (passed to soften up the NHS ready for further privatization) to be repealed. The situation in the NHS is still very bleak.

Central Middlesex and Hammersmith hospitals were both due to lose their frontline services on September 10, despite the admission that "the promised alternative provision" is not all in place and once again the remaining A&Es have no spare capacity. Sound familiar?

I was therefore surprised that the rally itself was such an inspiring and positive experience. Things are slowly beginning to change.

More and more people are now aware of creeping privatisation. Campaigners from all over the country can no longer be ignored.

Perhaps the most inspiring stories were those shared among the crowd. Next to me stood a man named Geoff Berriman, an 82-year-old campaigner from Durham who had marched nearly all the way.

When he could not continue (only about two miles before the end), his courage inspired the police to provide him with his own personal escort.

Marchers also told me that along their three-week march they had not once had to pay for accommodation or food thanks to the compassion and hospitality of those met along the route.

Morrisons in Enfield should be thanked for providing free food for the group on arrival at Edmonton.

Kate Wilkinson

Save Chase Farm campaigner

Health campaigners' warm welcome

ALL praise to the Darlington mums, who call themselves Darlomums, who, as predicted, arrived in Edmonton on time for their rally at Broad House on Friday.

They seemed to have gathered a lot of handsome men, among others with them, on their long march going through 23 towns and cities in the three-week march to London.

The Methodist Church kindly put them up for the night and Morrisons on request generously supplied some refreshments.

Indeed, Enfield is to be commended for its hospitality to these visitors on a mission.

The aim of the marchers was to bring home to all politicians that the NHS is not up for sale.

Hospitals losing their major services, the rapid fragmentation of health services and the almost forced tendering out of those services to the private sector, who have self-interest in making a profit, is not what we voted for at the last election. Or what we were led to believe.

Memories of West Indian cricket star

I WONDER if anybody can remember the West Indies cricket tour of England in 1950.

There was a player whose name was Allan Rae and he guested for Winchmore Hill Cricket Club.

We were aghast at the way he cleared the ground with sixes, hitting the houses in Firs Lane and damaging windows and tiles.

As children we were absolutely amazed at how far he could hit the ball.

I just wondered if anybody else can remember this.

So grateful for kindness

I AM writing to thank the two ladies and gentlemen who looked after me and phoned for an ambulance when I tripped over an uneven paving slab outside a block of flats in Ordnance Road, Enfield Wash, near the bus stop in Titchfield Road.

Also thanks very much to the kind gentleman who brought a cushion for me to rest on while waiting for the ambulance.

Name and address supplied.

Paving way to accidents

I FULLY support Pat Daobry, "Uneven paving slabs are dangerous for the elderly" (Advertiser, August 20).

Mitchell Road has many broken paving slabs in varying degree of evenness. It is so easy for elderly and poor-sighted people to trip up. I am elderly and walk along the kerb for safety.

I have no doubt if Mitchell Road was located in a more influential part of the borough, quicker action would have replaced the paving slabs.

Husband's illness inspires dousing

By Chloe Nichols

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

THE wife of a man who has Motor Neurone Disease has taken part in the Ice Bucket Challenge on Facebook to raise awareness of the disease.

Davina Rivers, of Gordon Road, Enfield, doused herself in ice cold water to raise money for research into the condition. Her husband Eric was diagnosed with the degenerative disease in July 2010.

"My youngest daughter held the camera while I threw the bucket of iced water over myself," she said. "Back when I did a sky dive earlier in the year I just wanted to scream to get people to sit up and pay attention and understand about this horrible disease.

"If I had known that all it would take to raise people's awareness about this disease is a bucket of iced water, I might not have jumped out of a plane thousands of feet in the air."

The challenge, in which people donate to the Motor Neurone Disease Association after being doused in a bucket of ice water, involves nominations where the 'victim' passes on the challenge to others.

Since videos of celebrities taking part in the challenge went viral last month more than £6 million has been raised in the UK alone.

Davina has revealed she has not just limited her nominations to the usual two or three people, but has nominated all of the Hornsey cricket team, who will now have to take the challenge.

Over the past four years, Davina has become a leading light in the campaign to raise money for and awareness about the disease.

Creating more space: Edmonton Cemetery

Aim to make more space for burials

COUNCIL chiefs have come up with a concrete solution to Enfield's burial space shortage by creating underground "mausoleums" in cemeteries across the borough.

The £600,000 scheme will see concrete-lined plots dug in parts of graveyards previously judged unsuitable for regular burials due to ground conditions.

The council said that it would continue to provide traditional earth-dug graves.

Cabinet member for environment Chris Bond said: "Enfield, in common with many other areas, is running out of burial space and this innovative project means we can use land that was previously unsuitable for burials in our existing cemeteries in mausoleum-type plots.

This is a sensible, proportionate and effective way of making sure that our available burial space can be used more flexibly and will last longer.

"As well as making more land available for burials, residents will also have more choice in the type of burial and where they are buried."

Heartache of X Factor girl

On TV: Monica Michael

Contestant's grief over teenager's pool death

By Daniel O'Brien

daniel.obrien@nlhnews.co.uk

A 24-YEAR-OLD who wowed X Factor judges on Saturday with a song she wrote herself has revealed her heartache at losing her new "brother" who drowned in a swimming pool in Cyprus last month.

In an episode screened at the weekend, Monica Michael brought judge Cheryl Cole to tears during the ITV show's audition stage with a song dedicated to her 16-year-old sister.

However, since filming the audition, Monica suffered the most "traumatic, upsetting and tragic" week of her life when Savvakis Georgiou drowned in a hotel pool in the party resort of Ayia Napa on August 18.

Last week, Savvakis's family, who run a supermarket in Bowes Road, New Southgate, alleged that the water in the pool had been so murky that his unconscious body lay at the bottom for up to five minutes before he was discovered.

An investigation has been launched into the death, while the owners of the hotel he was staying in were reportedly arrested on suspicion of not holding the proper hotel and pool permits before being released without charge.

Monica took to Facebook to share her heartache at the death of Savvakis, who she said had become like family since her mother and his father started a relationship last year.

On August 21, she wrote: "This week has been the most traumatic, upsetting and tragic week of my life." She added: "We were the Brady bunch. He was only our brother for 10 months. It's not fair, I just want him back. So now here we are left heartbroken.

"Nothing will ever be the same. I just hope Sav knew how much we loved him and how he played a big part in makin [sic] this year so special for us."

Monica said that Savvakis and his younger brothers Andronicos and Stefanos had supported her throughout the X Factor process. This included the moment they discovered she had failed to make it past the boot camp stage, which will be screened later this year.

She wrote: "I didn't get through that round and when I met the boys outside you could see they were upset for me. Sav came and gave me a great big hug an [sic] said 'You're still our superstar!'"

Last Wednesday, hundreds attended Savvakis's funeral at the Greek Orthodox Church of St John the Baptist, in Wightman Road, Hornsey.

GP is 'excited' to land health role

CCG appoints medical director as new chairman

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE body responsible for commissioning health services in the borough has appointed a new chairman.

Mo Abedi, a GP at East Enfield Medical Practice, in High Street, Ponders End, and Brick Lane surgery, in Enfield Highway, is taking charge of the board of the Enfield Clinical Commissioning Group.

The CCG is responsible for commissioning health services including elective hospital care, emergency care and mental health services.

Dr Abedi, who previously served as the CCG's medical director, replaces Alpesh Patel, a GP at White Lodge Medical Centre, in Silver Street, Enfield, who had been in the chair since April last year when CCGs took over from primary care trusts.

Dr Abedi said: "I welcome the opportunity to lead the CCG in our next stage of development.

"I am very excited about the challenges ahead and committed to achieving our aims to improve the health of our population."

In the chair: Mo Abedi

He was previously clinical director for Enfield Primary Care Trust, led the CCG's Primary Care Strategy programme and has a number of interests in private health care firms.

He is a director of and shareholder in Medicare Medical Services LLP, which runs the Evergreen primary care centre, in Smythe Close, Edmonton.

Medicare is a joint venture between Equity Health and HWH Group Limited – the holding company of Harmoni HS Ltd, a major primary care business which started as a GP co-operative and is now owned by Care UK.

Dr Abedi is also a director of and shareholder in Prime Point Ltd, a primary care provider, holds shares in the Enfield Health Partnership Ltd, which provides community gynaecology services, and is a director of DM786 Ltd, a property management company.

Liz Wise, Enfield CCG's chief officer, said: "He is a well-known and well-respected GP with a deep understanding of healthcare locally.

"Dr Abedi brings a wealth of experience to the role and has already made a considerable contribution to improving local health services through his position as medical director for Enfield CCG and other leadership roles."

'Save NHS' is rallying cry of marchers from north

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

PROTESTERS who had been marching for 300 miles in a bid to highlight what they call the privatisation of the NHS passed through the borough last week.

The march from Jarrow in the north-east of England to the Houses of Parliament set out on August 19. Supporters say it was intended to draw public attention to the carving-up of the NHS by government and private health insurance companies.

About 30 people took part in a re-enactment of the famous 1936 Jarrow march, which was a protest against poverty and unemployment during the great depression.

The marchers passed through the borough on the day before the end of their trek.

"Democracy is something we have to work for," Joanna Adams, organiser of the march, told the Advertiser. "People feel that politics is removed from them and we wanted to change that, we wanted to bring politics to the people."

"We all have a personal story to tell about the NHS – my son was born through IVF – and the idea that it might not be there any more is a scary thought."

Joanna wanted to start something that would galvanise people against changes to the NHS because she is worried that most people "don't realise what privatisation means".

She said: "It means that we will have to say goodbye to healthcare

Speaker: Kate Wilkinson, of the Save Chase Farm campaign that does not need ill people to spend their lives paying hospital bills."

Another of the "300-milers", as they have become known, Professor Rajan Madhor, was a former medical director in the NHS, but quit his post in protest over the involvement of private contractors in healthcare.

"It is the world's best healthcare system," he said. "I am of course not proud of some aspects of the health service."

"I am not proud of what happened at North Staffordshire, I am not proud of how the health service treats some staff, but there comes a point when you realise you cannot support the status quo any longer and you have to take a stand."

The march concluded with a rally in support of the NHS in Trafalgar Square on Saturday.

Success at the double for teen busker Natalie

Musician: Natalie Shay

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A TEENAGE singer/songwriter has made history by becoming the first person to win a London-wide talent competition twice.

Natalie Shay, 15, of Arnos Grove, has just been crowned winner of the Mayor of London's Big Busk competition in the youth category for the second time in a row – after bagging the prize in the same category two years ago.

The Brit School pupil, who has just started in year 11, is thrilled with the award.

It means she has a licence to busk anywhere in the capital – and also means she could be booked to appear in a range of events all over London.

"I feel really good and really, really happy, and a little bit surprised," the teenager told the Advertiser. "I really wasn't expecting to win."

Describing the sound of her music as "acoustic singer/songwriter", Natalie put her win down to her on-stage performance.

"I moved around a lot when I was performing and I think the judges liked that," she said.

Giving advice to any musical prodigies who are keen to follow in her footsteps, she said that any other teenagers keen to get involved in the music business should get as much on-stage experience as possible.

"The Gigs competition is a really good way to get into things," she explained.

"When I won two years ago, it really kick-started everything for me.

"And once you've started performing in front of people and doing these things you get more confident and then you can start gigging everywhere – which is the best place to start, I think."

Although Natalie admits that her school commitments might just get in the way of busking in front of swathes of commuters on Tube platforms every night, she said that the win had spurred her on to keep performing and playing.

Testing times: More schools are needed in highly populated areas, says MP Andy Love

Free schools 'are not easing strain in our classrooms'

MP says overcrowded areas being neglected

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

EDMONTON MP Andy Love has called on the government to divert funding away from the free schools programme and focus on building new schools in highly populated areas to tackle classroom overcrowding.

Responding to figures released by the Department for Education, showing a seven-fold increase in the number of pupils in Enfield who are in classes numbering more than 30 children, Mr Love branded the government's free school programme a "misallocation of funds".

In January 2010, just 62 infants in Enfield were in classes of over 30, but in January of this year that figure had leapt to 434.

The MP called on the government to focus on building new schools and expanding provision in highly populated areas that most need it.

He said: "Teachers in our area are doing a fantastic job, but the government's misallocation of funding for new schools is making it harder for them when classes are bulging at the seams.

"According to the National Audit Office, two thirds of all of the places created by the free school programme are outside areas classified as having high or severe primary school need. This is clearly not an effective use of money. The government must do things differently if we're to give local kids the best start in life."

Free schools were introduced by former Education Secretary Michael Gove in 2010. To set up a free school, founding groups, which can be groups of parents, educationalists or religious bodies, can submit an application to the DfE. They are not under the control of local authorities.

The Department for Education says that, through free schools and academies, the government is taking power away from politicians and handing it to heads and teachers, so that they can provide for pupils in the way they think best.

Annual festival draws thousands of visitors

Organisers say event is most successful yet

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

WITH food and entertainment on the schedule at the Palmers Green Festival, thousands of people thronged into Broomfield Park last weekend.

This year's event had the theme of encouraging older people to get involved in the community and Yvonne Quigley, the manager of the Ruth Winston Centre, in Green Lanes, Palmers Green, said the day had been "a huge success".

She explained that the Community Friendship Zone, set up specifically to help older people, had been "a wonderful place for people to come and gather information and advice from a number of organisations in the borough and hopefully solved some of their needs and those of their loved ones".

Festival organiser Phillip Chard said this year's event was the most successful yet.

"The festival has continued to grow year on year and demonstrates that local people want to get together and celebrate our diverse community," he said.

"We estimate that approaching 10,000 people came out to enjoy themselves. There was something for everyone – from entertainment for children, to a new project aimed at the older members of our community."

New primary school opens

Official opening: Bishop of Edmonton the Rt Rev Peter Wheatley at the school on Monday with pupils Wirgina Majewska and Blake Neubronner

By Ivana Scatola

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A NEW free school has opened in Edmonton in a bid to ease the growing pressure for primary places in the borough.

The Meridian Angel Primary School is housed in temporary premises in Dysons Road and welcomed its first pupils on Monday.

It is the first school in Enfield Council's multi-million-pound regeneration of the area.

Father Nigel Asbridge, chairman of the governors, said: "Upper Edmonton is one of the most deprived areas in London with a local community which faces many tough socio-economic challenges. Our vision is to provide an outstanding school which will greatly enhance the life chances of the children and their families.

"I'm so proud and excited to be opening Meridian Angel Primary School and would like to thank everyone who has helped us over the last two years to make this school a reality," he added.

The school will be moving to new buildings in Ladysmith Road, Edmonton, in September next year.

It will provide 420 places and has been established by the London Community Learning Trust.

It offers plenty of extra-curricular activities and also plans to provide extra facilities and services for children and their families in the community.

FAMILY ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sharon raises £1,000 in memory of 'brilliant man'

By Ivana Scatola

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A WIDOW has raised more than £1,000 for charity after her husband battled a debilitating disease for years before his death.

After Sharon Hunte-Clarke's husband Brian died in June, aged just 57, after suffering from Parkinson's disease for 15 years, the 55-year-old decided to do as much as she could to raise awareness of the condition.

Mrs Hunte-Clarke also wanted to raise money for Parkinson's UK – a charity that helped her husband in the final years of his life – so she asked mourners at her husband's funeral in July to donate money to the charity instead of giving flowers.

The former teacher, who gave up her job at Raynham Primary School, in Edmonton, to care for her husband in the final years of his life, was determined to raise the profile of the disease after so many people were shocked when her husband's diagnosis was revealed.

"To the outsider, you'd never have known he had Parkinson's," she explained. "It was only if you spoke to him and sat with him that you could tell."

Parkinson's is a condition that affects nerve cells in the brain and can cause tremors and slowness of movement.

But Sharon, of Kendall Avenue, Edmonton, revealed that because her husband was a fit and healthy 42-year-old when he was diagnosed, many found it difficult to believe he could be suffering from the disease.

"I think Parkinson's is always seen as an older person's illness, which isn't always the case. He was always so strong. People couldn't believe it when he passed."

In the last two years of Brian's life, as his condition deteriorated, Sharon looked after him by herself, without the help of carers.

She told the Advertiser that she was "deeply thankful" to friends and family who supported them both throughout and thanked everyone at the funeral who made a kind donation to the charity.

"I hope people will remember Brian as a gentleman," she added. "He was a brilliant, brilliant person."

Show has a rural theme

By Ruth McKee
ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

BRINGING old and new worlds together is no easy task – but the Enfield Town Show this weekend will be doing precisely that with a celebration of the borough's horticultural past and contemporary culture.

With five distinct and separate arenas – including a folk and world music arena – the show will be taking a nostalgic look back at its past incarnations when the biggest marrow competed against the crispest lettuce for prize rosettes.

One of the organisers of the show, manager of the Millfield Theatre, Paul Everitt, said that the theme dominating this year's event will be "getting back to our rural horticultural roots".

He said: "The whole thrust of this year's show is to create opportunities to join in with what is happening.

"It is not about sitting back and watching as it was in previous years.

"This is about a shared experience within the community."

Mr Everitt explained that the show this year will attempt to celebrate the different cultures within the borough.

"We have a thriving Irish community so we will be having a ceilidh each night – and one of the Enfield stars who will be performing is a Polish folk singer called Katie Carr."

The show will be in Enfield Town Park, Cecil Road, on Saturday from 11am until 7pm, and on Sunday from 11am until 5pm.

Admission is £3 and is completely free for anyone aged under 16.

Festival organisers have also said that the evenings will be made special with a sing-a-long screening of The Sound of Music lead by Enfield musical theatre star David Adams.

Preparing your sale for Autumn

The end of summer is approaching and so is the busiest time of the year to sell your property, but that does not mean you can't sell in autumn. Richard Oughton (pictured above left) from Ellis & Co Enfield Town Branch gives some helpful advice and tips that can keep your home on top selling form.

The way your home is marketed throughout the year really makes a difference and your agent should be aware of this. One of the most important factors of this is the photographs. If your home has been on the market for a while, taking new photographs in the next season is essential. New photos from different angles or on a sunny autumnal day will show your home in a new light which could attract buyers who may have previously glanced over your home whilst searching.

Presentation is key around this time of the year as the natural light from the hot summer sun will no longer keep your home bright and airy. Keeping your home tidy within a cosy environment is very welcoming for viewers, giving them ideas about imagining themselves living in the home.

While the season for bright colours and blooming flowers has come to an end, autumn sees the berries ripen which add to the reds and purples associated with the season. As the leaves begin to fall, make sure the garden is kept tidy by sweeping up dead plants and leaves.

Remember that winter is just round the corner, so basic DIY like a fresh lick of paint on the window panes or guttering can really clean up the presentation and functionality of the house. Avoid putting off potential buyers by getting the bigger jobs done, such as fixing leaky roofs, which will avoid a more expensive job in winter.

Homely touches like a clean doormat, outdoor lanterns or hanging baskets will ensure your home is looking its best all year round.

Finally, don't underestimate the kerb appeal a property needs to make potential viewers walk through the door.

If you'd like more helpful advice on selling your home at the best price the market will pay, then please contact Richard or one of his team at Ellis and Co. 58 Church Street, Enfield, Middlesex EN2 6AX.

We'll give you the best of both worlds...every week, all week!

In this rapidly moving technological age people are finding new ways to advertise, especially online via the internet. But contrary to what online sites are saying and common assumptions, print advertising is not dead. There are still benefits and disadvantages to both methods and the best way to succeed is to find a vehicle that covers both bases - and that's where we come in!

The Benefits of print advertising:

1. Print adverts last longer and will be seen often.
2. They will be seen by a large number of people and have the ability to hit a specific audience.
3. There is a more creative potential with print advertising.
4. There is a positive perception of newspaper advertising - it will encourage people to think the client is serious.

The Benefits of online advertising:

1. The advert content can be easily updated.
2. It's online 24/7, 12 months a year, all round the world.
3. A massive audience, with all ages now online.
4. Very quick response - you can be receiving candidates hours after posting your advert.

Small but packing a punch

By Iain Dooley

Facts at a glance

■ Model: Fiat Panda Cross 0.9 TwinAir 90hp, £15,945

■ Engine: 0.9-litre petrol unit producing 90bhp and 107lb/ft of torque

■ Transmission: Six-speed manual driving all four wheels

■ Performance: Top speed 104mph, 0-62mph in 12.0 seconds

■ Economy: 57.6mpg combined

■ Emissions: 114g/km of CO2

TAKING a leaf out of the books used by the big boys in developing beefy 4x4s, Fiat has produced a rough, tough version of its supermini-sized Panda – and while all-wheel drive is already an option, chunky bodystyling and an obvious focus on the great outdoors marks the Panda Cross out as a niche vehicle in an already small market.

That said, there's no denying that Fiat's baby 4x4 doesn't look the part. The micro SUV boasts all the right kit – bash plates, rugged plastic trim, a lofty stance, Tonka toy styling – but is also capable of talking the talk thanks to an intelligent, switchable 4x4 drive system.

The diminutive 4x4 has been styled to appeal to the new generation of urban warriors keen to mix the rigours of city life with aspirations of rural walking holidays and countryside getaways.

And, in this context, the Panda's beefy, steroid-enhanced appearance makes sense. Ground clearance isn't a whole lot more than the regular Panda 4x4 variant, but, thanks to the inclusion of those chunky tyres, shiny bash plates, plastic rubbing strips and exposed towing eyes, the Cross looks as if it could tackle almost anything. And it's a far cry from the famous angular first generation Panda 4x4 you can still find parked halfway up a Swiss mountain ski resort.

What's not to like about being able to scramble up hills, splash through streams and plug mud all day long? In the Panda Cross, you can do all of this and more thanks to the generous inclusion of all-season tyres and the ability to switch the transmission from city-friendly, two-wheel drive to a locked-up mode for slow-speed manoeuvres. And when you're not boldly going where no Panda has gone before, the car's cabin offers enough room for a small family.

Popularity-wise, it's likely to be the petrol option that secures the most buyers. This means a 0.9-litre TwinAir motor producing 90 horsepower, and while the diesel, a 1.3-litre 80 horsepower unit, produces more torque, the TwinAir gains a tweaked six-speed manual gearbox complete with a low "crawler" first gear. The result is brisk performance on the flat, with the gutsy TwinAir motor proving willing and flexible when pushed hard.

Unless the terrain is seriously tough, leaving the transmission in "auto" works surprisingly well for most slippery conditions, although "off road" mode adds considerable peace of mind as it forces the system to stay in all-wheel drive mode so long as you stay below 30mph. While this might sound like overkill for city motoring, the Panda's lofty driving position, slick controls, light steering and small size all help make light work of battling through the urban jungle.

If you just want a competent city car, then the Panda Cross is going to be a little OTT – but if you want to drive a car that's capable of squeezing into city centre parking spaces during the week and hitting the trail at the weekend, the Cross is hard to beat.

NU BLU

Mark is raring to go in his new Electronic Blue Fiat 500S. The integrated sports styling kit totally appeals to his inner petrol-head – that's body-coloured side skirts, rear spoiler, and chrome exhaust, not to mention optional 16" alloys. Inside, sports seats with accent-blue stitching and dark tinted rear windows drive the point home. And the all-new 7" TFT crystal digital display gives him his tech-fix. TwinAir engine means low CO₂ emissions and no road tax*. Hat from HeadStrong. Hatton Garden, London.

WALKER SET FOR AN EXTENDED ABSENCE

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

KYLE WALKER has undergone abdominal surgery in a bid to overcome a long-standing injury.

The problem has sidelined the Tottenham Hotspur right-back since March and forced him to miss the World Cup over the summer.

Spurs had originally hoped that he would be able to avoid surgery but, with Walker no nearer to a return to fitness, he underwent an operation last week.

A club statement said: "His pre-season preparations were disrupted by the abdominal injury, and the decision to have surgery was taken following further medical assessment by specialists."

Head coach Mauricio Pochettino added: "Kyle is good some days, but on other days he has a bad feeling. We believe he may recover soon, but we need to be calm with him, because it is an injury he has had for five months."

Meanwhile, summer signing Ben Davies believes that his battle for the left-back spot with Danny Rose will spur both players on to greater heights.

Davies joined the club from Swansea City and started both legs of the Europa League play-off victory over AEL Limassol, but is yet to feature in the Premier League, with England squad member Rose having got the nod for the three games to date.

"This competition is going to help us both," he said. "It is going to make us better players, hopefully, and that's all we want to do as professionals."

"Danny has been great to me, and it is a competition between us. We both want that jersey, but whoever does get it we are supporting the team and we'll support each other. That's the way it is going to be."

Saturday will see Spurs returning to action following the international break when they make the trip to Sunderland, looking to bounce back from their heavy home defeat against Liverpool in their previous outing.

Tottenham had won their opening two league

On the sidelines: Kyle Walker has undergone abdominal surgery fixtures, but they slumped to a 3-0 defeat at the hands of Liverpool and goalkeeper Hugo Lloris has vowed that they will produce a positive response.

"We have to learn from this game," he said.

"When you concede a goal after nine minutes it starts to be difficult. It's just the beginning of the season – it was our third game. We know that we are in a good way, but we have to keep going, keep working and keep the right spirit."

"Now we have an international week so we're going to think about our national teams and after that we will come back and be focused on the Sunderland game, which will be very important for us to bounce back as a team."

Hornsey are relegated despite a fine victory

A CRUSHING seven-wicket win at home to Richmond on Saturday was not enough for Hornsey to maintain their place in the top flight of the Middlesex County Cricket League as they suffered the disappointment of being relegated on the final day of the season.

Hornsey knew heading into the match that they needed to win and hope that Finchley failed to secure more than one point from their match against newly-crowned champions Teddington in order to stay up.

But, while an outstanding performance with the ball helped Hornsey to pick up maximum points, Finchley also emerged victorious in their match to ensure that it was they who avoided the drop.

Michael Philipson finished with the remarkable figures of 4-2 as Richmond were bowled out for just 56, with Ed Wharton (3-26) and Martin Tucker (2-18) also making their mark.

Hornsey lost three early wickets in reply, but Philipson's unbeaten 36 helped them to cruise to victory at 60-3.

Meanwhile, North Middlesex ended the season in fifth place after suffering a 90-run defeat at Ealing.

Robert White led the way by making 120 as the hosts posted an imposing 298 batting first, despite some fine bowling from Tom Nicoll (5-88).

Evan Flowers struck a superb 107 when North Middlesex replied, but he received little support as they were dismissed for 208. Ahmad Elech (3-14) was the pick of the bowlers.

Elsewhere, Highgate secured third spot in the final Division Three table after easing to a seven-wicket win at home to Middlesex Tamil Sports and Social Club.

Nisham Mazahir (76) was the only man to offer any real resistance with the bat as the visitors were dismissed for 174, with Craig Gourlay taking 4-14.

Christopher Arul then smashed an unbeaten 108 off just 85 balls as Highgate raced to 176-3 to seal their victory.

However, there was disappointment for North London as they lost by 64 runs at Ickenham – being bowled out for 131 after the hosts had declared on 195-9.

Skolars end with a narrow defeat

A DISAPPOINTING season for the London Skolars came to an end with a spirited display on Sunday when they suffered a 38-28 defeat away to a York City Knights side who finished top of the Kingstone Press Championship One table.

It took the hosts just two minutes to open the scoring as Benn Hardcastle pounced on a Lamont Bryan error to score a try in the second minute which Ben Reynolds converted.

But Bryan soon atoned for his error by setting up Martyn Smith for the Skolars' first try, before Reynolds touched down to restore York's advantage.

The Skolars again hit back when Kazeem Fatouri-Edwards burst through a gap in the defence to cross the line, but the hosts took firm control of the match in the closing stages of the first half – with Greg Minikin, Ed Smith and Reynolds all grabbing tries in quick succession to leave them 26-10 ahead.

However, the visitors refused to lie down and began the second half in positive fashion as Smith touched down for a second time.

Kriss Brining put York further ahead again, but Mufaro Mvududu picked up a loose pass on halfway and raced to the line to claim his 12th try of the season and ensure that he finished as the Skolars' leading scorer.

Fatouri-Edwards then claimed his second try of the match as the visitors closed to within four points, and John Paxton came close to adding a further try when he was bundled into touch just short of the line.

York were not to be denied however, and James Saltonstall weaved through the defence to touch down with four minutes remaining and seal their victory as the Skolars ended the season in seventh place.

Tottenham is changing

With the help of more than 3,700 local people, Haringay Council drew up a 20 year plan to improve the lives of those who live here – and create a thriving area with excellent facilities.

By 2025, they want to create more than 5,000 jobs and 10,000 new homes. As well as improving transport, schools, sports facilities, public spaces and the state of the local streets. There is around £65 million put aside to do it.

The regeneration will focus on several main hubs in the area, with the idea that these will lead to a ripple of further improvements. Their focal points are Seven Sisters underground station, Tottenham Green, Bruce Grove and Tottenham Hale station, as well as the 20 acre Northumberland Park site where the Spurs' new £430 million football stadium is already underway.

It means the entire area is going to be cleaner, more attractive and more thriving. It's good for Tottenham, and good for you.
